

REMBRANDT PUT ON VIEW BEFORE SALE

Celebrated Master's Oval Portrait of St. John Will Be Auctioned This Month.

IN SMITH COLLECTION

Group of Early American Examples Is Included—Also Oriental Art.

A Rembrandt at auction! A genuine, accredited Rembrandt, with a long pedigree of the most respectable sponsors! That sounds like a return to the conditions of before the war. The Charles Stewart Smith art collection now on view in the galleries of the American Art Association is an excellent collection. In all around excellence it is the most important that has appeared this season. There are no blanks in it anywhere. All the pictures have to be looked at, as all have merit of one kind or another. Yet, after all, it is the Rembrandt that distinguishes this auction above all those that have occurred in recent years. A sale of a Rembrandt always has dramatic possibilities and draws the attention of the community, even of those who have no possible hope to acquire it themselves.

With these paintings of Mr. Smith are being sold his Oriental art collection and some pictures for other owners, among whom are the estates of the late Fred L. Block of Peoria, Ill.; the late William Macbeth of Boston, Mrs. Hilda C. Flower, Mrs. Olof Rihne, Joseph F. Flanagan, John Emmott and Mrs. M. C. Thompson. The sale will take place on the evenings of April 24 and 25 in the ballroom of the Hotel Plaza.

Hangs in Place of Honor.

The Rembrandt hangs in the place of honor in the first gallery, in the spot that has held a number of great Rembrandts in times past. It is an oval portrait of St. John, whose head and shoulders only appear. He wears a brown cloak and

MISS STEVENS WED TO RUSSIAN PRINCE

Painter Is Bride of Dmitri Galitzin, Officer in Navy of Old Empire.

HIS FATHER A PREMIER

Romance Dates From Dinner in 1917 at the Embassy in Washington.

When Russia was still an empire an American girl, Miss Frances Simpson Stevens, of 137 West Seventy-ninth street, became engaged to Prince Dmitri Galitzin, son of a former Prime Minister of the Czar. Much water has passed over the dam since then, but not enough to prevent the Prince and Miss Stevens from getting married, which they did yesterday in the chapel of the Marriage License Bureau in the Municipal Building. Right afterward they took the train for California to sail by way of Japan for Vladivostok, where Prince Dmitri, who long has been an officer of the Russian navy, will resume command of a flotilla of torpedo boats and travelers under the new regime.

The ceremony was performed by Michael J. Cruise, Deputy City Clerk. The bride said she was 35 years old and born in Chicago. The bride, who is 27, gave his address as 39 West Seventy-sixth street. The mother of the bride, Mrs. Arthur Oley Probst, formerly Mrs. Ellen Weiss Stevens, a direct descendant of Thomas Wallis, first Governor of Connecticut, attended the wedding. Ivan Dmitrieff, formerly of the Russian Embassy in Washington, was best man. Another witness was Count Jean de Streleki.

Miss Stevens is a graduate of Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass., and is an artist. She studied at the Art Students League, where she organized Red Cross auxiliary 425 and later received a complimentary diploma from the Italian Red Cross. She went to Spain to study with Robert Henri in 1911, and traveled through France and England for two years, specializing in landscape painting. In Washington, she was with Mrs. William H. Taft, and was one of the first women to be identified with the Futurists.

She met Prince Dmitri in the spring of 1917 at a dinner given by Russian officers in the United States by Ambassador Bakhmeteff. In the preceding February, the Prince had been appointed Captain of the armored cruiser Rurik, but had been prevented from taking command by revolutionists. He had then been sent to the United States.

On July 25, 1914, in a battle between the Russian fleet and the Japanese fleet commanded by Admiral Togo he was wounded by a high explosive shell. He was in a marine hospital nearly four months. When he got out he was held prisoner by the Japanese. After the war he was assigned to the Baltic fleet.

At the beginning of the world war he was made commander of naval fortifications on the northern coast of the Gulf of Finland. Under the Romanoff regime he received many decorations, including orders of St. Anna and St. Stanislaw. In Rome he was one of the first to commemorate the Russo-Japanese war. His father, Prime Minister Dmitri Galitzin, formerly Governor-General of Moscow, died in the last days of the Romanoff regime. The Prince's brothers have been killed in the Bolshevik revolution. The family estates in Russia were estimated to be worth $20,000,000.

Prince Dmitri is an adherent of Admiral Kolchak, commanding the Russian army now opposing the Bolsheviks in Siberia.
